

Theater Menu

In the mood for theater but need ideas for what to do?

This is just what you need!

Explore the options below (even try them all).

Please share with me because I'd love to see what you're up to!

With permission, visit the YouTube Channel: Disney On Broadway and watch a video (or 2... or 10!)	Play the game "Sausage" with your family. (Rules: One person asks questions and other person's only answer can be "sausage." The person answering sausage cannot smile or laugh!)	Write a sequel (or a prequel) to a show you've seen. If you haven't seen a live show, try a movie musical; Disney movies work too!
Learn a Monologue from the list posted in "Resources." Try to memorize it, too, and really act it out. Bonus - ask someone at home to help you act it out and share it with me!	Write your own scene! Include a setting, stage directions and at least 2 characters. Bonus - ask someone at home to help you act it out and share it with me!	Learn a a song from your favorite musical. With permission, try watching different versions of the song on YouTube. Bonus - ask someone at home to help you act it out and share it with me!
Play the game "Questions" with your family. (Rules: Two people have a conversation but can only ask questions. Like "How are you today?" "Why do you ask?" etc.)	Write a review (or a reflection) of a production you've seen. If you haven't seen a live show, try a movie musical; Disney movies work too!	Play the game "Action Figures" with your family. (Rules: Two people act out a made up scene BUT the actors can't move unless they are moved by a different person like an "action figure." The person/people doing the moving aren't involved in the scene.)
